Ze Yang
Madison, WI

Bilingual Education Assistant
Verona Area School District

Ze Yang earned her B.S. in Education from Edgewood College and is currently attending graduate school to earn an elementary teaching license. For more than decade, she has worked at the Verona Area School District as an educational assistant. Moreover, she has built her career in a variety of roles and atmospheres mostly related to serving the underprivileged and underrepresented community. She often finds herself serving as a gatekeeper, mentor, advisor, cultural bridge, and community leader.

Ze Yang is thrilled to be a part of the Women's Council by offering her experiences with academic coursework, the education system, and social, personal, and cultural networks within and beyond the Hmong community. She hopes to bring her unique insight to the council as a first-generation Hmong-American educator.

Ze is married to Sir Xiong and they have six beautiful children. She lives on the eastside of Madison with her family.
